Can city escape PMDC agreement?

By TOM KISKEN

PAHOKEE—While the question posed by the Pahokee Council members was blunt—Can the city nullify the 50-year agreement over the marina?—the answer was less clear.

At a council workshop, Tuesday, June 19, Attorney Mike Stauder said the council could contest the agreement with the Pahokee Marina Development Corporation, approved by a 3-2 vote in May 1983, only if a condition was found in the agreement, which has not been satisfied.

"Even if its not in the interest of the city, you can't just arbitrarily break it," he said.

While there seems to be several questionable clauses in the agreement, a judge would have to determine whether there is just cause to declare the agreement void, Stauder stressed.

"It's hard for me to sit up here and tell you there's a breach, let's contest it, because that could leave the door open for a big lawsuit," he said.

Councilman Curtis Miners said he was ready to risk a lawsuit. "If they (PMD) are going to stick to this agreement, which is one sided from the front page to the back page... then I say let's cancel it."

The council should request PMDC to revise the contract, considering council input, Miners said. He said he personally opposed the city's financial return in the contract, the length of the commitment and lack of specifics.

Stauder said several points of controversy, including the city's financial return and lack of specifics, probably could not be legally argued as these points were understood when the agreement was approved.

The agreement will allow PMDC to "develop, improve and operate the breakwater and the marina." PMDC is currently scheduled to begin its initial five year lease agreement, with three 15-year options, in January 1986.

Only council members debated the agreement at Tuesday's workshop. Council President W.E. McKinstry asked that a PMDC representative attend the council's June 26 meeting in order to schedule a joint workshop.

Mayor to urge revision of code

By TOM KISKEN

BELLE GLADE—Belle Glade Mayor Thomas Altman said he will ask the City Commission to consider revising a building code which is preventing Neighbors Organized for Adequate Housing from relocating its first housing project.

Altman said the code, slated for the commission's agenda Monday, June 25, states a house must be brought up to city code before being moved.

"It doesn't make sense to bring the house up to code, jack it up, run it across town and run the risk of messing something up," he said.

Sister Pat, of NOAH, said that unless the code is revised, the group will be forced to abandon plans to relocate the old First Baptist Church office building, which it hopes to renovate into a low rent housing facility.

NOAH must move the building by July 1 to enable the church to begin construction of a new office building. Sister Pat noted the group

Dead man's face reconstructed

Sheriff's officials have released a composite sketch of the skeletal remains of a body found February off of US 27, about 17 miles south of South Bay.

Detective Rick Radford, of the Glades Sub Station, said while detectives have not yet determined the identity of the body, nor made any arrests in the case, they're hoping the composite will generate leads.

"Once you identify the body, that's where you start the cultivation of suspects," he said.

Investigation is continuing, but no new leads have been turned up, besides the composite, Radford said.

Anyone who recognizes the composite, or knows of a person who has been missing at least a year is urged to contact Radford at 996-1670.

The skeleton was found by a passerby, Feb. 17. Radford said medical examiner's estimate the skeleton had been by the side of the road for at least year.

Medical examiners, Radford said, believe the victim to have been a caucasian male, age 17-28, brunet hair, 5-foot-9 1/4 to 6-foot tall.

Radford said there is a possibility the man might have been of Mexican descent.

The composite picture will be distributed throughout the state, Radford said, adding that already over 100 flyers have been distributed, inquiring about the victim's identity.

The facial reconstruction was done by Glades Sub Station Detective Paul Friedman, using the victim's skull and other skeletal remains.

BELLE GLADE—American Legion Post 20 members kept the spirit burning, Thursday, June 14, during Flag Day ceremonies.

Legionnaires burned more than 40 used flags. Legion officers estimated about 100 people attended the ceremonies.

Post Commander Fred Youchuck said, "This ceremony is the only way to dispose of our flags with the dignity and respect that is due them."

Flags were donated by: the City of Belle Glade, U.S. Post Office in Clewiston, Belle Glade, South Bay and Pahokee, City of Clewiston, Glades Day School, Elks Lodge and the Florida Highway Patrol.

Youchuck asked any organization which needs to dispose of a flag to contact the Legion.

More policeman requested by SB chief

By SUZIE MAYBURY
SOUTH BAY - Police Chief Roy Humston has asked South Bay city commissioners to add two more police officers to compensate for rising rate of crime.

Humston, at the commission meeting, Tuesday, June 19, said the increase in personnel is primarily to provide extra manpower on Highway 27 to keep speeders at a minimum. Humston also provided statistics showing an influx in crime which he said put more pressure on the police department. "We are showing the same amount of people doing a job that demands more," he said. Humston also pointed out the danger children in the community face with the "speeding cars going down 27." "I believe in prevention before it happens," Mayor Vernita Cox said. "I'm obligated to the people of South Bay and we'll see what we can do come budget time."

In other business:

Commissioners turned down a request by a local resident to build a store on property bordering a church. City Attorney James M. Gann said the conflict arose over "whether or not a church is within 1000 feet of a place selling liquor." The resident argued that the building was not being used as a church, rather one was using the building "as a place to worship." But Lomax Harrelle, city manager, said the building is a church because a building permit had been issued. Cox reminded the property owner that other inquiries had been made and subsequently denied. "We have denied other individuals that privilege," she said. "We can't accommodate you because of our ordinances." Commissioner Clarence Anthony announced the appointment of Harrelle to the Community Development Advisory Board.

Man arrested on warrants

BELLE GLADE
-Police arrested a man wanted for several charges over the last few years, including battery on a police officer and aggravated battery.

Belle Glade Police Detective Albert Dowdell said Gary Noble, 31, of Belle Glade, was apprehended, Friday, June 15, on South West Sixth St.

Noting Noble has been wanted on warrants for the past three years, Dowdell said he and Detective Jack Fulenwider spotted the man and moved in to make the arrest.

Noble resisted the arrest, Dowdell said, adding that officers were able to eventually restrain and book the man.

In addition to warrants for battery on a police officer, aggravated battery, resisting arrest with violence and violation of probation, Noble faces new charges of resisting arrest with violence and possession of marijuana under 20 grams.

Dowdell noted that shortly after the arrest, Noble's brother, Leroy Noble visited his brother at the police station. Police then discovered that Leroy also had an outstanding warrant, for contempt of court, and arrested him also, Dowdell said.

In other Belle Glade police news, two men were placed under $3,000 bond after being charged with dealing in stolen property, Thursday, June 14.

Bernard Wilfred Beasley, 22, of 715 Trailer Park, unit 7, and Vernon Darrell Amos, 620 SW 10th St., are charged with possessing over $100 worth of miscellaneous stolen merchandise, according to police reports.

The value of vacations

By REV. ROBERT W.
CARLSON

Mark 6:30-32 says, "The apostles gathered around Jesus and reported to him all they had done and taught. Then because so many people were coming and going that they did not even have a chance to eat, he said to them, 'Come with me by yourselves to a quiet place and get some rest.' So they went away by themselves in a boat to a solitary place." (NIV)

Today, June 21, is the first day of summer. Are you taking a vacation? I hope it is a restful one. In order to do our very best at work, school or in the home, we need periods of relaxation.

Edwin R. Roberts, a professor at Princeton Theological Seminary, heard a pastor announce, "I am not going to take a vacation this summer; the devil never does!"

Professor Roberts decided to study the Gospels to understand Jesus' attitude concerning vacation. Here is what he discovered.

During His three years of public ministry, we know of 10 times Jesus left the crowds to rest and be with friends, that does not include His regular, nightly rest and the Sabbaths.

If you work hard like Jesus and His disciples you deserve and should take a vacation that will provide genuine recreation. Come apart and rest awhile, before you come apart.

Also, in conjunction with the tourney, a beer and fish fry will be held Saturday, June 14.

Carl Lockmiller's recollections of the early Glades

Editor's note: The following is the concluding chapter in the series documenting the early life of Glades pioneer Carl Lockmiller and his family.

As Told By CARL LOCKMILLER To RUTH S. IRVIN

My Dad did other things in addition to farming. He started a freight hauling business in 1918 and we moved to the South Bay settlement. Dad bought a big one-room school house located at Torry Island and along the banks of the canal where the railroad tracks is located today. Across the canal was the small South Bay settlement consisting of a few buildings. V.C. Denton's grocery store was there in a small building. My Mother put up wires to divide our wires into rooms. She fastened sheets to the wires in order to partition off the rooms. My Dad hauled freight in 1918 and 1919. He bought a freighter, the "South Bay" and had a barge built. His business became quite profitable.

Dad made two trips a week to Ft. Lauderdale. Frank would make a trip with him one time and I would go the next time. We would load up at night. We would start picking up freight at Torry Island and along the banks of the canal. Dad would shop for people in Ft. Lauderdale - fuel, lumber or anything they asked him to get.

Dad got hauling freight while we were living on the canal bank across from the South Bay settlement. He built a five-room house, complete with a porch on his freight barge. In the summertime there was about three months that nobody farmed. We would take our power boat and pull our houseboat to Ft. Lauderdale for a month or so. That would be our vacation time.

My Move to Ft. Lauderdale

I went to Ft. Lauderdale the year of this heavy rains and floods in 1922. I went to work running a sight-seeing boat that belonged to a land sales company. The company had a fleet of twelve or fifteen cars which was driven by a salesman. Each day they would go to Miami and pick up prospects and bring them to Ft. Lauderdale. The prospective land customers would be loaded on the boat and I would take them on a tour to see the land. The trip up the south New River Canal was beautiful. The passengers were unloaded on the banks of the canal at Dania where they could look over the Everglades - mile after mile of saw grass stretching out in front of them. There was a restaurant where they would eat. A brisk business of selling land took place. I had to be twenty-one before I could get my license to run the boat. I had to pay an old gent $5 a day to ride on the boat with me until I became of age and got my license. I made $40 a week. The job lasted two years until the land company went broke. I continued to run boats. I got a job with the Tide Water Construction Company which was hauling supplies to build the Overseas Highway from Key Largo to Key West. I ran a tug boat for a year to Key West, hauling building materials. I worked for Crabtree, one of the owners, of this company for seven years. Ivan Van Horn, Max Harrel and Lawrence Will also worked for him on Key Largo. All of us had gained our skill in running boats.

Crabtree worked out of Ft. Lauderdale and it was not uncommon during the time I worked for him for big ships or boats to get stranded. I would go out with a tow boat and bring the boat that was in distress safely in to harbor. I remember a magnificent 125-foot boat, three stories high, that was in trouble. It belonged to Col. Green, the son of Hetty Green. It had only one functioning motor, the other had damaged rudders. It lay too low for the inland waterway. It took a week to get this boat from Pompano to Miami.

Return to the Glades

The depression was well underway in 1930. I worked with a road surfacing crew out of Okeechobee when the Orlando to Okeechobee highway was being built. It ran through Ft. Drum and Yee Haw Junction. I stayed on this job for five months. I also worked on Brown's Peanut Farm at Shawano, fourteen miles from Belle Glade for six months. I did light repair work and worked from 10 a.m. until 11 p.m. After this, I went to Ft. Lauderdale and got a job firing boiler in a laundry.

My brother, Frank, was drowned inside the locks at South Bay while saving the life of his son who had fallen in.

Frank worked for Lou Betzner, our brother-in-law. Zelma was married to Lou who had a hardware store on the east side of Main Street in Belle Glade. Lou asked me to come out and run his hardware store after the death of Frank in 1934. I worked there for twelve years. My father died on November 1, 1938. My mother lived with Zelma until her death on April 1, 1947.

Rosa Nash, Laura's sister, and her husband were renting an apartment from Lou Betzner. Zelma and Rosa were good friends. Laura came over from her home in LaBelle to stay with Rosa and she got a job working at Jim Darden's Drug Store. I went to the drug store frequently to get a cup of coffee as did just about everyone else. The drug store was the gathering place for everybody in Belle Glade. Arthur Wells, Shick Kirchbach, Bob Creech, Sr., Louis Wymann, Buzz Granger, George and Bryan Rawls, Joe Cherry and Dr. Buck were some of the citizens who stopped by the drug store for coffee and to talk. Red Gurkin, the barber, Mr. Cunningham, Mr. George Tedder, John Kirk, the constable, and others had a barbershop quartet. They would come into the drug store and sing. Everyone kidded Laura. One time I asked her if she had bird seed that would make a bird sing "Yankee Doodle."

Laura and I were soon dating. We were married on Nov. 16, 1941. Our son, Charles, was born on Oct. 1, 1942, and Yvonne, our daughter, was born on Feb. 17, 1948.

We opened our own hardware store at 517 West Avenue A in 1947. The reason Left Betzner was that I injured my back. I am of slight build and I became increasingly difficult to lift. 20 pound gas tanks and big sacks of Purina feeds. I stayed a year after my back injury but Laura and I began to make plans to open our own store.

McCormick named Lion of the Year

BELLE GLADE—The Belle Glade Lions' annual changing of the guard took place with installation of officers, Saturday night, June 15. The highlight of the evening came with incoming President Dallas Nehls accepting the challenge of following Bret. McCormick, earlier named Lion of the Year, as head lion.

Nehls noted he had a tough act to follow, but pledged to do his best to keep the club active. He told fellow Lions, "Only with the help of all you members will we have a successful year in Lionism."

McCormick, named Lion of the Year for the second time, said he was very proud of the club's accomplishments. Through hard work and cooperation of all members, Lions raised about $4,200 for eyesight and community charities during the year, he said.

The Harvest Queen Pageant, held this April for the first time in several years and sponsored by the Lions, provided the highlight of the year, McCormick said. "When the curtain raised and I saw the crowd's reaction, that was it for me, just great," he said.

McCormick, at 24 the youngest Lions president in the Belle Glade club's history, also received the past president's plaque and the president's pin at the banquet. The son of another past Lion president, Bob McCormick, Bret. has been a Lion since 1978 and will serve this year as zone chairman.

Past District Governor Bill Swartz Sr., of Clewiston, served as installation officer at the banquet. Swartz reported that district clubs contributed over $45,000 the past year to Lions eyesight charities. Swartz commended Belle Glade Lions for their achievements and urged them to keep up the good work.

New officers installed by Swartz included: Nehls, president; Mike Miller, first vice president; Buddy Wilder, second vice president; Phil Dulany, third vice president; Wade Messer, secretary; F. David Teets, treasurer; Mike Saunders, Lion tamer; and Perry Rigdon, tail twister.

Jeff Hooker and Jeff Hawkins will serve as two-year directors, while Frank Shutts and Lynn Lowery will serve as one-year directors. Phil Dulany won a special plaque, honoring his service as the club's treasurer for the past two years.

McCormick also announced the recipients of several appreciation awards given to Lions for their work during the past year. Award winners included: Bill Lee, Jeff Hawkins, P.G. Meskin, John Carney, Mike Saunders and Jim Leeman.

DALLAS NEHLS was installed as president of the Belle Glade Lions at their installation banquet, Saturday night, June 16.

BELLE GLADE—The work on a 13.1 mile section of State Road 80 from SR 15 to U.S. 98 will begin within the next 50 days, according to the Florida Department of Transportation.

The DOT selected Budget Resources, Inc., of Ft. Lauderdale to do the work. They were the apparent low bidders for the project with a bid of $7,141,012.73.

Palm Beach County Delegation Chairman Ed Healey said, "We are overjoyed with the initial undertaking of this important widening project."

He said the delegation was ecstatic about the change of direction the DOT had taken in the funding of the SR 80 project within the next five years.

"This is the fulfillment of a long, long awaited project, which has been of serious concern to the people of Palm Beach County," Healey said.

The project is scheduled to be completed within 620 days once work begins. Local members of the Canal Hazard Safety Committee attended the DOT meeting in Tallahassee Tuesday, May 29.

Hospital adds satellite terminal

BELLE GLADE- A satellite receiving system installed last week at Glades General Hospital will enable healthcare professionals to keep abreast of the latest developments in medical technique without taking time off for costly seminars and conferences.

"Physicians, nurses and allied health professionals have a professional responsibility to keep abreast of developments in their fields," said Patrick Lennon, hospital administrator. "This generally requires travel to regional conferences and seminars at major medical institutions."

Now, however, the staff at Glades General can receive the latest state of medical arts from television receivers in the hospital via Hospital Satellite Network (HSN), which beams round-the-clock programming, both to professionals and patients, to subscriber hospitals throughout the United States.

The programs for physicians, nurses and other medical professionals originate from the country's leading medical centers, including UCLA Medical School, the hospital of the University of Pennsylvania and the Yale University School of Medicine. A supplementary feature of HSN is the access it provides to industry-wide teleconferences through which medical expertise is exchanged nationally.

"In this way, we can fulfill our obligation to provide continuing medical education in a more cost-efficient manner," Lennon said.

Janet Kennan, RN, assistant director of nursing in charge of in-service education, sees Hospital Satellite Network as one way Glades General can curb its educational expenses while still providing high quality education which results in better patient care.

The programs are approved by the American Medical Association and American Nurses Association for continuing education credit and can be taped and stored in a film library so staff members can fit viewing into their schedules.

"With HSN, we can now receive the latest information from the leading authorities in the healthcare industry," Kennan said. "It brings continuing education to us at a reasonable cost with hours compatible with our work schedules."

Patient programming is another feature of the Hospital Satellite Network. It includes two feature films each day, comedy features and informational programs to assist patients in understanding their hospital experience.

"With HSN, Glades General not only saves travel and tuition costs, but also keeps its staff available to serve the community," Lennon said. "This translates into reduced costs passed along to patients, as well as a hospital better equipped to meet the community's needs."

THIS COMMUNICATIONS disk, installed on top of Glades General Hospital last week, will enable the hospital to continue continuing education programming.

GCI wins accreditation

BELLE GLADE- The Glades Correction Institute recently had its accreditation renewed by the Commission on Accreditation for Corrections.

Jerry Arline, GCI assistant superintendent, said the accreditation means GCI's facilities and policies meet national standards. An accreditation team closely reviewed all phases of business at the institute, including security, sanitation, maintenance and food service. The institute had to go through the entire accreditation process in order to retain the award, originally gained in 1981. Arline commented that a tremendous amount of work went into preparing GCI for accreditation inspections.

"It took a team effort," he said. "That's the only way something like this can be achieved."

GCI scored 94.5 on the accreditation evaluation, on a 100-point scale. 90 points are needed to pass. Arline pointed out there are also several mandatory standards, which an institution must meet in order to gain accreditation.

The accreditation is another indication of GCI's continuous work to maintain its rank as one of the top correctional institutes around. Arline said, "I'd match us with anyone," he said.

And the work won't cease with the accreditation. Arline said the accreditation team can hold a spot inspection at anytime. And in three years, GCI will have to go through the entire process again in order to retain the award.

Chamber approves budget, sets banquet date

BELLE GLADE

Belle Glade Chamber of Commerce directors approved a 1984-85 operating budget of $42,145 in a meeting Tuesday, June 18.

Chamber President Israel Baez said the biggest change the budget is an increased request for a city grant. Directors asked the city to provide

$6,000, a $2,000 increase over the current grant. The increase will have to be approved by city commissioners. The budget forecasts $10,965 worth of income to be generated out of membership dues. Judy Schiele reported the chamber, in midst of a membership drive, is nearly $3,000 shy of this figure. Baez said this gap could be narrowed considerably, if directors worked hard at recruiting new members, while also resigning current members. Crane, chamber executive secretary, reported she just recently issued a third notice to current members, who owe dues. Directors urged members to renew their memberships. The budget included $9,065 in promotional expense and $33,080 in office operating expenses. About $2,700 profit is forecast for next year's Black Gold Jubilee. The chamber allotted $3,300 for jubilee expenses and $6,000 for income. Expenses for the annual banquet were forecast at $4,500, with income at $4,400. In related business, directors agreed to approach South Bay city officials about granting funds to the chamber. Crane commented that because South Bay has no chamber, the Belle Glade chamber provides services for the area. She noted several years ago South Bay commissioners agreed to fund the Belle Glade chamber, provided the facility changed its name to the Belle Glade-South Bay Chamber of Commerce. The chamber's board of directors rejected this suggestion, she added. Janelle Meredith reported the chamber's annual banquet will be held Oct. 18. Bob Lee, of U.S. Sugar Corp., will serve as master of ceremonies. Schiele suggested directors ask a representative of the Florida Department of Tourism to be the featured speaker at the banquet. Chamber directors also agreed to ask the city to allow the Palm Beach Junior College Dolly Hand Cultural Arts Center to move its promotional marquee in front of the chamber office. The chamber and the junior college would both use the sign to promote its events.

Telephone service opens

PAHOKEE —The operator of the Glades newest telephone service urges residents to compare his service with any other.

"You'll find a significant savings here. The customer should compare first before deciding where they'll go," said Coleman Bell. Coleman Bell Telephone Services opened June 1 to serve the Belle Glade, Pahokee, South Bay area. Bell, 29, of Pahokee, said he will install telephones, wiring and also do repair work.

Bell can be contacted at 924-2329. All work, he stressed, is done at the customer's residence. He noted that his preliminary service fee of $15 is considerably lower than competitors.

Bell, a former employee of Southern Bell, said he has been in communications all his life. Prior to working for Southern Bell, he worked in communications in the U.S. Army and Army Reserve.

In addition to installing wiring, Bell said he also can install junction boxes and do preparatory interphase work. These items can really be a benefit to the permanent phone owner, as they allow a person to trace the source of any phone difficulties, Bell said.

Eventually, Bell said, he would like to expand his business to include intercom and central sound system work.

Sunbelt looking to the future

Despite recent controversy, Sunbelt Cable Ltd. is looking toward a bright future in the Glades, according to the company president. "We look forward to a long and good business relationship with our communities," Edward Addiss said.

The company is celebrating its first birthday, taking over for Jones Interchange Co. back in June, 1983. Addiss said while Sunbelt has done well in servicing Belle Glade, Pahokee, South Bay and other coastal areas its first year, it hopes to improve both quantity and quality of its service.

"We're very positive and we're very optimistic," he said.

Speaking to recent criticism of the quality of Sunbelt's service, Addiss said the company is willing to do whatever possible to resolve any differences. The company will not pursue legal recourse, even if public criticism continues, he stressed.

"Our attitude is one of cooperation," Addiss said. "We don't consider ourselves in an adversary position with the communities."

The key to solving problems is communication, he said, noting Sunbelt officials have received very few recent complaints. The company needs to know the specifics of any problems.

Addiss noted Sunbelt has improved cable service significantly over what it was a year ago. A considerable amount of money has been spent in upgrading the systems, he added.

Considerable work has been done in the Belle Glade office in improving both repair service and the appearance of the office itself, he said. Future plans include several cable extensions in the Glades area, including the Glades Correctional Institute, Addiss said. The company also eventually hopes to add another channel to its system, he said.

"The company has had complaints during its first year and by no means has a perfect operation, Addiss said. However, complaints in recent months have been cut significantly, he said.

"Every cable company has problems," Addiss commented. "The main thing is how we're responding and I think we're doing a very good job."

Veteran retailer retires after 34 years at Royal's

BELLE GLADE —George Dupere, Merchandise Manager for Royal's Department Stores, is retiring after 34 years with the south Florida department store chain.

Mr. Dupere, whose career spanned the growth of the firm from three small grocery and general mercantile stores to a 10-store chain of department stores, was honored at a luncheon held here.

Marking nearly 50 years in the retail store business, Dupere was praised by Royal's officials including the chairman of the Board, Royal's founder G.I. Royal.

"George has always provided an inspiration to all of us with his good humor and willingness to go beyond what was expected," said the senior Mr. Royal.

Royal's President Larry Royal termed Dupere's contributions to the company's growth "invaluable." The Escanaba, Mich. native has spent most of his adult life in Florida retailing. He joined Royal's family stores in 1950 leaving a position with another retail store in Belle Glade. Dupere was the principal buyer for the stores for many years. He pointed with pride to his first position at Royal's — manager of the downtown Belle Glade store and buyer for the developing variety department.

"I believe I bought most of the merchandise we had on our shelves for the first 16 years I was with the company," said Dupere.

More than 50 Royal's officers and employees joined in the luncheon often marked by humor to honor Dupere, who is the senior employee of the company.

"I think only Mr. Royal has been here longer than I have," quipped Dupere.

Dupere and his wife of 43 years, Earnestine, are the parents of six children: Dick Dupere, a Boynton Beach Middle School math teacher, Alice Dupere Pletnick, whose husband is Dean of Students at Christian Missionary Alliance College and Seminary at Nyack, N.Y., Darlene Dupere Rogers, a music teacher at another N.Y. college, George.

Mr. pastor of Camelback Bible Church, Phoenix, Ariz. David Dupere, physical education director at Boynton Beach Middle School.

Dupere, an avid hobbyist nurseryman, said he planned to devote more time to his hobby following his retirement in July.

"In the meantime, I expect I will still be pretty busy," said the veteran retailer, "what with the sale of the department stores to McCrory's."

It was announced last month that the 10-store chain was being sold to McCrory's, a national variety store chain, with the sale to be concluded in July.

Dupere was honored with retirement gifts from the company's management and from his fellow employees, principal of which was the title to a company vehicle which has come to be something of a "Dupere" trademark — an orange van.

More than a dozen Royal's employees were honored with plaques marking their tenure with the company in ceremonies during the luncheon.

FPL offers choices to control costs

MIAMI — A surprising jump in electrical usage last winter, combined with higher fuel oil prices will raise electric bills this summer for FPL customers.

Beginning with meter readings June 1, the fuel charge on the bill will increase $3.37 to $38.48 per 1,000 kilowatt hours (KWH), pushing the total bill to $44.31, excluding franchise fees and local taxes. The increase was approved by the Florida Public Service Commission in public hearings earlier this month.

"Significantly higher customer usage in the first three months of the year combined with higher oil prices and the additional oil needed to meet that increased usage, translated into an $88.3 million under-recovery of fuel costs for the quarter," an FPL spokesman said. "Of this amount, $74.7 million applies to retail customers."

More than half of the additional fuel costs were due to higher customer usage, requiring some $48.5 million for additional oil. "While usage by all retail customers went up more than six percent over projections, residential usage rose even higher, averaging 7.5 percent over projections, residential usage rose even higher, averaging 7.5 percent over projections," the spokesman said.

"Customer growth was relatively stable over the period, increasing only one tenth of one percent," he said.

Reduced nuclear generation and higher costs of natural gas also contributed to the fuel under-collection for the three months. Anticipating this summer's higher bills, there are positive actions customers can take to reduce electrical use, said Nelson Hawk, Director of Marketing and Energy Conservation. "After all, the customer is the ultimate controller of usage. How much electricity to buy and what conservation efforts to use, are the customer's decision. FPL is offering several choices to help in the decision-making."

Among these are:

- * Several incentive programs including H.E.L.P., the Home Energy Loss Prevention program, which offers a package of small low-cost energy saving measures, and FPL pays half the cost.

- * Budget billing helps customers avoid seasonal variations in the bill and helps even out the bill each month. Budget billing does this by basing the customer's bill on annual power consumption, not just what is consumed during the latest billing period.

- * Time-of-Use rates may be a money-saver, particularly for some high-use residential customers, providing a price incentive to shift electrical use to off-peak hours.

For information on these and other programs and advice on energy-saving measures to help customers control energy consumption, call your local FPL office or the Watt-Wise Line TM (Dade: 223-WATT), (Broward: 463-WATT), (Toll-free: 1-800-432-6663).

morning, from 10 a.m. until noon, at the Loula V. York Memorial Library.

The free program began Thursday, June 14, and will continue

Dorothy Harvey, library director, and

Doris Crouch, library assistant, are planning the youth program, entitled, "Book Quest; Search for Dragon's Treasure."

GGH honors retiring nurse

BELLE GLADE --A nurses aid at Glades General since the hospital's inception over 36 years ago, Rosemary Rivers said goodbye to fellow employees at a retirement party, Friday, June 15.

Rivers, 68, 561 S.W. 11th St., Belle Glade, said, "I'm going to be missing everyone of y'all. I don't think I could have worked with a better group of people. May God bless each and every one of you."

Patrick Lennon, hospital administrator, and Zalia Yates, director of nursing, presented a gold pen-dant to Rivers, it was called Glades Memorial. Over the years, she said, she has seen a lot of changes, most of them positive.

Rivers worked with the newborn nursery virtually her entire time of employment. "I always liked the people I worked with and I just love taking care of the babies," she said.

When Rivers first started working for the hospital back in 1948, ROSEMARY RIVERS, retiring nurses aide at Glades General Hospital, said goodbye during a party June 15. Presenting her with a gold pendant is Patrick Lennon, hospital administrator.

BELLE GLADE --The Belle Glade City Library's summer youth program offers free educational entertainment for kids 11 years old and younger.

The program, entitled "Book Quest; Search for the Treasure," started on Monday, it, she said. "Every week, they get to take June 11, and will continue through July. The program is broken up into three age groups, with each sector meeting once a week.

Kids 3-5 years old meet Mondays, 6-8 year olds meet Thursdays and children, ages 9-11, meet Fridays. All groups meet for one hour, beginning at 11 a.m. And on Saturdays films for all ages are shown from 2-3 p.m.

Assistant Librarian Susan Williams, who heads the youth program, said, "I try to get the plates, gold foil decorations, illustrating books kids interested in reading and give them and action rhymes.

something to do during the summer months." While participation was a little slow during the first week, Williams expressed hope interest would grow.

"I think it's a great free event and the kids love to take home something with them."

Williams said she tries to pick activities which match the children's educational abilities. For example, the younger kids often are treated to meet Thursdays and children, ages 9-11, meet Fridays.

The older youth have made puppets and later the program plan to put on their own show for the other age groups.

Other planned activities include decorating heads the youth program, said, "I try to get the plates, gold foil decorations, illustrating books kids interested in reading and give them and action rhymes.

BG summer program underway

BELLE GLADE --The city's summer recreation program took off, Monday, June 18, at Glades Central High School.

Willie McDonald, program director, said an estimated 100 people participated in the first day of the program. The program is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., five days a week.

The program is used mostly by teenagers looking for activities to fill their summer, but also by adults hoping to keep fit, McDonald said.

Activities include basketball, weight lifting, softball, volleyball, cards, checkers and several other games. Participants have use of the Glades Central gym, weight room, football field and track.

McDonald said he will start an organized weight program, Monday, July 25. Eventually, intramural basketball, with youth separated into several age groups, will be organized.

Also in the near future, the younger kids will be able to spend their Wednesday mornings roller skating at Glades Skateworld. McDonald said a bus will pick up the kids between 9-9:30 a.m. at the high school and then return them at 11:30 a.m. Kids will be charged $1 at the skating rink. McDonald stressed that, with the exception of the skating, the summer rec program is free and open to the public.
